Good news on grants and loans from the feds

The federal grants and loans to small businesses ran out in two weeks. That is the good news. You see, it means the people administering the program at the direct contact level were so efficient they took on a new project, learned it, and accomplished it, in lickety-split time.

And who are those folks who mastered the details? They are the ones most derided and least appreciated among us. They are the government bureaucrats who faithfully serve citizens every day.

Bless them all.
