Sportsmanship: A tale of two teams

A few weeks ago Navy played Texas State. With a minute left in the football game Navy was comfortably ahead and had the ball within five yards of another touchdown. Twice the quarterback took a knee rather than run up the score.

Monday night Ohio State played Oregon. With a minute left in the football game Ohio State was comfortably ahead and had the ball within five yards of another touchdown. Twice the quarterback ran a play in order to run up the score.

Is there a lesson in sportsmanship here?
